Rules: Articles

One difference in Creole verses English is that in Creole a definite article like the or la or yo or nan follows the noun.

- After any consonant except n or m consonant add -la.
- After words ending in m, nm, nn, gn, ng la becomes nan.
- After vowels la becomes a
- After words ending in -n la becomes an

the letter : lèt-la

the room : chanm nan

the street : ri a

the dog : chen an

The indefinite article (A,AN) is yon or youn and they are placed before the noun.

- Youn is used with one syllable words which end in oun themselves. Otherwise, use yon .
- The plural version (SOME) is kèk .

a street : yon ri
some streets : kèk ri
a man : youn moun

Rules: Possession

Kreyol doesn't use 's to show possession, nor does it use "of".

To express possession or "of the", you place the thing possessed in front of the possessor.

Jean's house. : kay Jan.
the man's dog. : chen moun nan.
the dog of the man : chen moun nan.

Rules: Adjectives

Adjectives require no verb and are translated as "to be..."

Sick: malad I am sick. M malad. We are sick. Nou malad.

Rules: More Than One

To indicate that something is plural, place the plural article yo after the noun.

cow: bèf the cows: bèf yo
